Intel Promotional Activity

Intel Promotional Activity (or “Activity” or “Activities”) is an Intel sponsored activity or program that markets, promotes, or provides education about the products and/or services of Intel. This form is your permission to Intel and to Original Equipment Manufacturers, channel resellers and to Independent Software Vendors working with Intel (“Intel Partners”) to use your Properties that you will upload in those Activities.

Examples of Activities include, but are not limited to: internal presentations; case studies; audio/video presentations for sales or trade shows; advertising, web content; annual reports; point-of-sale displays; and demonstration programs.

Depending on the specific Activity, Intel may need to reference or copy the Properties, in whole or in part; incorporate the Properties into any form of fixed media; combine copies or partial copies of the Properties with materials owned by the Provider or third parties; create new content; and make copies as reasonably necessary for an Activity, including for display or distribution to third parties via any form of electronic or print media; and for co-marketing activities with Intel Partners.
